

Stream Title: Management, Leadership and Diversity

Stream Chairss:

Dr Victoria Showunmi, Institute of Education University of London 20 Bedford Way London WC1H 0AL Tel:+44(0) 0207 911 5443 Email: v.showunmi@ioe.ac.uk	Dr Dorota Joanna Bourne School of Business and Management Queen Mary University of London Mile End Road London E1 4NS Tel. +44 207882 7440 Email. d.bourne@qmul.ac.uk
--	---

Stream outline:

Leadership is one of the most debated aspects of business and contemporary organisations. Much has been said on corporate leaders and what defines them as 'successful' or 'effective'. However, current leadership models are usually devised within a homogeneous, (North American) westernised, white male-oriented paradigm (Lumby, 2007). Theorists have noted the inadequacy of many leadership perspectives, urging a move from 'colonial' models of managing 'otherness', to incorporate ethnic voices (Gilborn, 2004; Lopez, 2003; Osler, 2006). Other significant challenges to this unitary perspective have been introduced in the 'real world', notably following the election of Barack Obama. These changes have implications for current discourse in leadership theory and practice such as 'authentic leadership' (Goffee and Jones 2005), 'distributed leadership' (Diamond 2007) and 'aesthetic approach' (Hatch et. Al. 2005). For instance, what are the implications of 'authenticity' for non-prototypical leaders like black, Asian and minority ethnic (BAME) individuals? What are the implications for shared leadership in the context of power dynamics inherent in cross-identity group relationships? With increasing globalisation, cultural and ethnic diversity, new leadership models ought to draw upon a wider notion of leadership, potentially encompassing a wider range of leadership styles from different societies and cultures. Surely, the time is ripe to reflect and evaluate the western model / concept of leadership, and to create a space for alternative models of leadership acknowledging the multiple permutations of diversity across the world.

Considering the embryonic and exploratory nature of much of the research in this area the authors would like to invite researchers and evidence-based practitioners to engage in a 'conversation' on the diversity-related implications of leadership practice and theory in an international context. Specifically, we will be looking to invite established researchers as well as those earlier in their research careers to submit theoretical and empirically informed papers for a series of presentations and round table discussions. Authors are encouraged to consider questions for open discussion and debate such as practical or theoretical issues needed to advance thinking or research in the area.

Possible themes include:

- The intersection of facets of diversity with leadership (e.g. black women leaders)
- The absence of black, Asian, minority ethnic (BAME) leaders
- The challenges faced by minority leaders
- Organisations' roles in developing BAME leaders
- The case for BAME-only leadership development programmes

- Potential learning from other established leadership literature streams such as women in leadership
- New models of leadership drawing on spirituality, creativity, ethics and aesthetic
- Leaders in the community and relevance to organisational leadership

Key words:

Diversity, leadership, management and culture

Publication plans:

An article in the British Journal of Management, International journal of Human Resource Management